A Thanksgiving Message

November 23, 2022

From LIHSA's Principal: Laura Vega

Dear LIHSA Families,

As I reflect on my first few months at Long Island High School for the Arts and the things for which I am most grateful, your children and the talents and gifts they share with our community each and every day are on the top of that list. I am so grateful for a vibrant school community where students can explore their passion for art with one another.

I am thankful for our teaching faculty who share their knowledge and prepare our students for opportunities in both colleges and universities and in the professional field. I am so thankful for their generosity in planning and ensuring that our students experience one-of-a-kind learning opportunities each and every day.

I am thankful for our teaching partners who provide essential industry experience and their many years of expertise with our students. Your skill-training and professionalism is what helps to make our school so exceptional.

I am thankful to our community and educational partners who continue to support arts education through scholarships, grants, and funding for our school. Your work is essential to ours and your support makes us stronger.

I am thankful for a robust community of alumni who have shared their artistry with the world. We look forward to welcoming many of you back in December with open arms and look forward to continued partnerships with each of our graduates no matter where in the world you live!

I am so thankful for the Nassau BOCES Board of Education, our Superintendent, Dr. Dillon, and the entire Administration at Nassau BOCES and RSIP. Long Island High School for the Arts is lucky to be a part of such an outstanding educational agency.

We hope this long weekend provides you and your family with the opportunity to rejuvenate and celebrate.

Happy Thanksgiving.

Best Wishes,

Laura Vega, Principal
